

January 18, 2005

Welcome to “No Content Wednesday” for the TriBakery group.

Every third Wednesday of the month at the TriBakery group we postpone our normal group discussion so we can grow not only by the content discussed but likewise through the friendships formed. So get something to eat, and something to drink, sit down and introduce yourself to those around you. If you are having trouble finding something to talk about perhaps the quote below could help stir discussion.

Enjoy,
Kirk

Quote:

“Christianity is more than a matter of a new understanding...[it] is an invitation to be a part of an alien people who have aligned themselves with the seismic shift that has occurred in the world since Christ...The church exists today as resident aliens, an adventurous colony in a society of unbelief. As a society of unbelief, Western culture is devoid of a sense of journey, of adventure, because it lacks belief in much more than the cultivation of an ever-shrinking horizon of self-preservation and self-expression...We lack a coherent story that pulls together the disconnected elements of our lives...”

Stanley Hauerwas and William H. Willimon
from Resident Aliens: Life in the Christian Colony, Abingdon Press, 1989

January 18, 2005

Welcome to “No Content Wednesday” for the TriBakery group.

Every third Wednesday of the month at the TriBakery group we postpone our normal group discussion so we can grow not only by the content discussed but likewise through the friendships formed. So get something to eat, and something to drink, sit down and introduce yourself to those around you. If you are having trouble finding something to talk about perhaps the quote below could help stir discussion.

Enjoy,
Kirk

Quote:

“Christianity is more than a matter of a new understanding...[it] is an invitation to be a part of an alien people who have aligned themselves with the seismic shift that has occurred in the world since Christ...The church exists today as resident aliens, an adventurous colony in a society of unbelief. As a society of unbelief, Western culture is devoid of a sense of journey, of adventure, because it lacks belief in much more than the cultivation of an ever-shrinking horizon of self-preservation and self-expression...We lack a coherent story that pulls together the disconnected elements of our lives...”

Stanley Hauerwas and William H. Willimon
from Resident Aliens: Life in the Christian Colony, Abingdon Press, 1989